Regional High School Students Will Attend Leadership Conference Nov. 5 on Campus

Approximately 200 students from area high schools who are interested in learning more about leadership skills are expected to attend the eighth annual "High School Leadership Day" on Wednesday, Nov. 5, at SUNY Cortland.

Jointly sponsored by the College's Center for Educational Exchange and the Campus Activities and Career Services Offices, the event will take place from 9 a.m. to 1:45 p.m. in Corey Union.

The conference is designed for students in grades 9-12, school counselors, club advisors and coaches. Participating high schools include: Auburn, Cato-Meridian, Cicero-North Syracuse, Cortland, Groton, Homer, Lansing, Marathon, McGraw, Oxford Academy, Southern Cayuga and Weedsport.

The interactive conference is designed for high school students and their advisors who wish to attend leadership skills workshops, meet students and advisors from other area schools, share stories of successful school programs, and be inspired by leaders from a variety of career backgrounds.

SUNY Cortland President Erik J. Bitterbaum will open the conference and welcome high school student leaders and their advisors at 9:30 a.m.

From 9:45-10:45 a.m., Louis Larson, career services, and Judy Kopf, campus activities, will deliver the keynote address on "Goal Setting: How An Effective Leader Gets Where He/She Wants to Go."

The workshop sessions, at 10:55 a.m. and at 12:30 p.m., are:

- "Working with Your School Administrators: Getting Them to Say Yes";
 - "Psychology of Leadership";
 - "Not Enough Time? Learn Time Management Skills";
 - "The Importance of Leadership in Sports";
 - "Help! I Have to Speak in Front of a Group of People";
 - "Selling Yourself to the College That's Your Top Choice";
 - "Learning to Lead";
 - "O.K. - I Have Leadership Skills — Now What Do I Do?";
 - "Empower Yourself and Others: Discover the Magic of Your True Colors";
- and,
- "Exploring Diversity: Relating It to Leadership."

Leisure Educator to Give Metcalf Lecture at Recreation Conference

Deb Jordan, a professor and graduate coordinator in the Leisure Studies Program at Oklahoma State University, will deliver the prestigious Metcalf Lecture during the 53rd annual SUNY Cortland Recreation Conference on Nov. 6-7 on campus.

Jordan, the author of two books on leadership, will discuss "Conscious Leadership: A Mark of Excellence" at 1:15 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 7, in the Corey Union Function Room. The lecture is free and open to the public.

"Learning Today ... Leading Tomorrow" is the theme of the two day gathering, the nation's oldest continuous collegiate-sponsored recreation education conference. Sponsored by the Recreation and Leisure Studies Department, the conference receives additional support for its Metcalf Lecture from the Metcalf Endowment and the Campus Artist and Lecture Series.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. on both Thursday and Friday in Corey Union. The fee is $70 for professionals and $25 for students for both days. The registration fee includes meals. Additional information may be obtained by calling ext. 4939 or online at www.cortland.edu/rec/2003_conference.pdf

The conference will offer more than 30 educational sessions and practical workshops on recreation management, therapeutic recreation, outdoor recreation, programming and youth development. More than 400 recreation professionals and college recreation majors are expected to participate in the conference.

Cortland alumni making presentations at this year's conference include: Hunter Nezelek '99, John LaRue '89, Rhonda Jacobs '01, Frank "Snapper" Petta '76, Laura Kahabka '97, Bill Garrison '88, Teresa Tucker '03, Tim O'Connell '90, Jeff Dickinson '85, Judith H. Reilly '88, Tom Fuchs '83, Gordon J. Wilson '77, Geoffrey Godbey '64, John McNerney '87 and John P. Silsby '69.

The event is planned and directed by recreation and leisure studies majors in the special events planning class, taught

College-Community Forum Nov. 6 at Blue Frog Cafe

SUNY Cortland, Tompkins Cortland Community College and City of Cortland officials will hold their third College-Community Forum on Thursday evening, Nov. 6, in the Blue Frog Cafe at the corner of Court and Main streets in downtown Cortland.

Open to all members of the greater Cortland community, the forum begins at 7 p.m. and will conclude by 8:30 p.m.

"The forums are designed to give community members an opportunity to discuss ideas, issues or concerns which impact the colleges and the community," said Raymond Franco, student affairs. The first two forums were held, respectively, last March in downtown Cortland and in May in Old Main Brown Auditorium.

American Democracy Project Launched by Campus Civic Engagement Task Force

The American Democracy Project (ADP) at SUNY Cortland got off the ground on Monday, Sept. 22, when the Civic Engagement Task Force held its first meeting in Brockway Hall Jacobus Lounge.

"The American Democracy Project is a four-year-old effort sponsored by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities and the New York Times to increase the numbers of civically involved students in public colleges and universities," explained ADP Coordinator Richard Kendrick, sociology/anthropology.

The task force, composed of more than 30 faculty members, administrators, staff members and students, will oversee future campus involvement in the project. The group met to discuss how issues of community involvement and civic engagement can be brought to the forefront of campus life.

"In conjunction with this year's theme at SUNY Cortland of civic engagement, the task force will be seeking ways to bring the dialogue about civic engagement to the larger campus community," said Kendrick. The ADP is an activity of the Institute for Civic Engagement, which he directs.

A non-partisan, multi-campus initiative, the ADP seeks to create an intellectual and experiential understanding of civic engagement in the U.S. in the 21st Century. The project grew from a concern about decreasing rates of participation in the civic life of America in voting, advocacy, local grassroots associations and other forms of civic engagement necessary for a vital democracy.

More than 160 campuses across the country are participants in the project, including seven SUNY colleges and three CUNY colleges, Kendrick noted.

"Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Elizabeth Davis-Russell charged the task force with creating in our students a sense of themselves as citizens of the world, concerned about the well-being of the larger, global community of which they are a part," he said. "She urged the group to think about how to create something enduring on the campus — theoretical perspectives that undergird the work that we do, and structures that would exist to promote civic engagement into the future.

"Toward that end, the task force was encouraged to think about specific projects that we want to engage in as part of the American Democracy Project and how we might collect data about the effectiveness of our efforts."

The task force took note of the fact that the College annually involves hundreds of students in a variety of service activities through course work in 'service-learning' courses, internships, volunteering, the residence halls and fraternities and sororities, Kendrick noted. In addition, individual faculty, staff and administrators contribute hundreds of hours to the communities in which they live and work.

"What we need to work on is providing our students with a framework for thinking about and analyzing the service work that they are doing," Kendrick said. "We also need to be more systematic about how we integrate the knowledge, skills, values, and motivations to be involved citizens of a democracy into the various curricula of the College. Political involvement — through voting, participation in the political process, and advocacy — needs to be more prominent on our campus."

During the remainder of the academic year, the Civic Engagement Task Force plans to discuss these issues and design specific projects to address them, he said.

For more information about the ADP, the Institute for Civic Engagement, or the Civic Engagement Task Force, call ext. 2481 or e-mail kendrickr. The ADP has an informational Web site at www.aascu.org/programs/adp.

College's Public Access Defibrillation Equipment Progress Reported

The public will soon be able to use the College's public access defibrillation equipment to save lives in the event of on-campus cardiac emergencies, the Faculty Senate was informed during its Oct. 21 meeting in Brockway Hall Jacobus Lounge.

The 14 small, fool-proof devices should be wired and installed in key public locations around campus by the end of October, said Steven Meyer, exercise science and sport studies. Meyer has coordinated the program with help from numerous people across campus.

"The Automated External Defibrillators (AEDs) are extremely small, very smart and can very quickly bring you back to life if your heart has stopped beating normally," Meyer said.

The Athletic Training Office will have two AEDs to bring to athletic practices and events. The University Police Office will have one. The remaining 11 will be installed on stationary units across campus.

By year's end, approximately 800 to 1,000 students, staff and faculty members will have been trained to effectively use the AED devices, Meyer noted. A number of academic programs offer the training.

"Right now, most of the training is focused on our students," he said. "I've been holding classes almost weekly." The approximately three to four hours of necessary training is also offered to residence hall assistants, lifeguards and students enrolled in the Health 120 class.

"There is an 80 percent save rate if someone can respond to the victim within two minutes," Meyer said. "Our goal is to get lots of people trained so that in an emergency, there will always be someone around who knows how to use AEDs."

However, the equipment was designed for use by any bystander.

"It's user-friendly," Meyer said. "There are only two buttons on it and the machine gives voice prompts. There are instructions on cardiopulmonary resuscitation attached."

Amid some laughter, Meyer demonstrated the AED on Senator John Cottone.

"It analyzes the heart and if necessary, a shock is delivered," Meyer said. "It can recognize a shockable heart rhythm, for example, fibrillation or tachycardia. Fibrillation is rapid quivering or a sudden cardiac arrest. Tachycardia is an extremely fast heart rate. It will also recognize a regular sinus

Community Roundtable on Nov. 6 to Focus on Local Water Supply Issues

The public will have an opportunity to learn more about the history of the Cortland aquifer and the effects of pollution on it during a Community Roundtable on Thursday, Nov. 6.

Titled "Everything You Wanted to Know About the Cortland Aquifer But Didn't Know Who to Ask," the roundtable takes place between 8-9 a.m. in Park Center Hall of Fame Room.

Sponsored by the President's Office and the Center for Continuing Education, the event is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served at 7:45 a.m.

Raymond Franco, student affairs, will moderate the discussion. The panelists are Todd Miller, a hydrologist with the U.S. Geological Survey in Ithaca, N.Y. and Douglas Withey, chief water systems operator with the City of Cortland Water Department. A question-and-answer period will follow the presentation.

The program is the first in a two-part series about the Cortland aquifer. A second roundtable on Thursday, Dec. 4, is titled, "The Cortland Aquifer: Achieving Balance and Economic Development."

An aquifer is a water-bearing layer of permeable rock, sand or gravel that acts as a filter on this natural resource.

Miller will describe his investigative work between 1989-1995 with the Cortland aquifer. His studies took place several years after a major contamination was discovered and traced to a nearby manufacturing company, the former Smith Corona Corporation. Miller will explain a number of important terms associated with the aquifer, such as geology, hydrology and water quality. He will also describe the use of computer simulation to track groundwater flow.

Withey, who has worked with the Cortland aquifer for 32 years, will discuss its history, including past occurrences of pollution. He will outline the safeguards in place to prevent future contamination of the community's water supply and what factors affect the public's cost for water.

For more information on the Community Roundtable, contact the Center for Continuing Education at ext. 4214.

Islamic World Tolerance of Other Religions is Topic of Interfaith Association Lecture Nov. 13

Raymond Joseph Hoffmann, a research professor and senior fellow in religion with the Center for Inquiry Institute in Amherst, N.Y., will discuss "Religious Pluralism in the Islamic World?" on Thursday, Nov. 13.

Hoffmann, who from 2000 until this year was a professor of civilization studies at the American University of Beirut in Lebanon, will present the 12th annual Memorial Lecture in Honor of John Galipault and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Crumb at 7:30 p.m. in Brockway Hall Jacobus Lounge. Galipault and the Crumbs were instrumental in forming the Interfaith Association, which is sponsoring the event. Refreshments will be served during the talk, which is free and open to the public.

At the Center for Inquiry Institute, Hoffmann chairs the Committee for the Scientific Examination of Religion. He also directs the Institute's Critical Studies in Religion Program, offered in collaboration with SUNY Buffalo's Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Hoffmann, who has a Doctorate in Philosophy from the University of Oxford in England, has taught courses on Religions of Late Antiquity, Early Christianity and Comparative Studies in Christianity, Islam and Judaism.

Between 1992-99, he taught theology, first as a senior lecturer and after 1995 as principal lecturer, at Westminster College in Oxford. He also directed the College's Center for Critical Studies in Religion, Ethics and Society and was an associate lecturer in theology at Manchester College in Oxford.

From 1989-1991, Hoffmann was associate professor of humanities and cultural studies at California State University in Sacramento, Calif. He has served on the faculties at Hartwick College and SUNY Oneonta in Oneonta, N.Y., and the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

He has held many secondary, honorary and visiting appointments, including with LaTrobe University in Melbourne, Australia, University of Papua in New Guinea, Africa University in Zimbabwe and the University of Hawaii at Manoa.

Hoffmann has been honored as a Rockefeller Scholar at Harvard Divinity School, a senior scholar at St. Cross College in Oxford, a Denyers and Johnston Scholar of the Faculty of Theology at Oxford University, and a Fulbright Faculty Fellow in the Rackham School of Graduate Studies of the University of Michigan.

Currently, he serves as senior editor for Early and Near Eastern Christianity of the Journal of Higher Criticism. He is the author of a book, Marcion on the 'Restitution of Christianity': An Essay on the Development of Paulinist Theology in the Second Century, published in 1984 by Scholars Press of Atlanta.

A native of St. Louis, Mo., Hoffmann is married to Carolyn Ruis Hoffmann. They live in Amherst, N.Y., and have two daughters.

For more information, contact Protestant Campus Minister Donald Wilcox at 753-1002 or 753-8142.

Second Fall Open House Planned for Nov. 10 on Campus

More than 450 prospective college students are expected to spend a day visiting academic departments, touring the campus and talking to faculty and students during the second SUNY Cortland Fall Open House on Monday, Nov. 10.

The College will show off its campus to interested individuals on a regular day of classes, said Admissions Director Gradin Avery. Individual academic departments and offices providing student services will hold their own open houses where visiting high school students and other interested persons can speak directly with faculty, staff and students. Additionally, guests may tour the campus and eat in the dining facilities.

"The Fall Open House programs offer visitors the most comprehensive experience of our people and resources," Avery said. "The programs allow the faculty and students a chance to showcase the exceptional qualities of their respective areas."

The visitors have made prior reservations with the Admissions Office to be on campus that day, Avery noted. They will formally register between 9-10 a.m. in the Park Center lobby and the Corey Union lobby. Students interested in athletic training, physical education, kinesiology, fitness development, recreation, and sport management will register at Park Center. All others will register in Corey Union. Academic departments will give presentations in their designated office areas from 11:30 a.m.-12:20 p.m.

Campus and residence hall tours will run from noon-2 p.m., starting in the Corey Union Function Room. Also at noon, admissions and financial aid presentations will be offered in the Corey Union Fireplace and Exhibition Lounges.

At 12:30 p.m., the visitors will gather in the Corey Union Function Room for a fair featuring representatives from academic departments and student services.

Parking for the Open House visitors will be provided at the Route 281 parking lot. A special shuttle bus service to and from the lot is planned for that day.

For more information, call the Admissions Office at ext. 4711.

College to Host Philosophy Conference on Justice and the Global Civic Community

SUNY Cortland will hold a conference for individuals concerned with issues of social justice and peace in a global society from Nov. 14-15 in Brockway Hall and Old Main.

Titled "Engaging Philosophy: Justice and the Global Civic Community," the two-day event is sponsored by the Philosophy Department's Social Philosophy Program. The conference is free and open to the public. A donation of $20 or more per participant is requested to cover program expenses.

Late registration during the conference will take place in the Old Main lobby. The events on Friday, Nov. 14, are scheduled for 1:30-10 p.m. in Brockway Hall Jacobus Lounge and Old Main. Saturday's program will run from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. in Old Main.

The conference includes approximately 24 seminars led by students and academicians on the following themes: the new imperialism and its contradictions; over-consumption in the overdeveloped world; environmentalism; social identity: global and local cultural, political, spiritual resources for resistance; workers' rights and the global economy; the prison-industrial complex; diversity; and building democracy at all levels.

The event will feature three keynote speeches and a Friday night entertainment program titled "Creative Resistance: Music, Puppets and Good Times!"

- Keynote speaker Steve Bronner, professor of political science at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J., will present "Anatomy of a Disaster: Iraq and the Collapse of American Foreign Policy" at 4 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 14, in Brockway Hall Jacobus Lounge. Bronner wrote the 1992 book Moments of Decision: Political History and the Crises of Radicalism, which won the Michael Harrington Award. He also has taught at the New School of Social Research and the University of Leipzig in Germany.

- Nancy Holmstrom, associate professor of philosophy at Rutgers University, will give a keynote lecture titled "Security and Global Justice" at 10 a.m. on Saturday in Old Main Room Colloquium Room. Holmstrom is co-editor of Not For Sale: In Defense of Public Goods (Westview 2000) and editor of The Socialist Feminist Project: A Reader in Theory and Politics.

- Kate Bronfenbrenner, director of labor education research at Cornell University, will discuss "Labor's Revitalization in Tough Times" at 1 p.m. in Old Main Colloquium Room. Bronfenbrenner is director of labor education at Cornell University's New York State School of Industrial Labor Relations. For many years, she was organizer and business agent with the United Woodcutters Association in Mississippi and the Service Employees International Union in Boston. Bronfenbrenner has written extensively on union strategies. With her expertise in labor issues and advocacy, she has been asked to testify at national government hearings on labor. Bronfenbrenner received the Labor Party's first Karen Silkwood Award in 1998.

- The "Creative Resistance: Music, Puppets and Good Times!" program will take place on Friday from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in Brockway Hall Jacobus Lounge. The Piquetera Tour, a collaboration of U.S., Argentinian and European Bread and Puppet members, will perform a puppet show dealing with the current uprising in Argentina and the aftermath of this crisis. Two popular local musicians and activists, Colleen Kattau and Jolie Rickman, will perform. Lenelle Moise, an award-winning Haitian-American slam poet and playwright, will present an intense exploration of the creative-prophetic potential of the spoken word. Her plays include: "The Many Faces of Nia," "Cornered in the Dark," and "Lesbians Talking About RICE!" An actor, visual artist and activist, Moise wrote and starred in Mara Alper's short experimental video, "To Erzulie," which premiered at the 2002 Berlin Sommerfest der Literaturen. She also co-wrote "Dependencia Sexual," the feature-length debut of Bolivian film-maker, Rodrigo Bellot.

"The conference will bring people together to discuss issues of social justice and peace in our global society," said Kathryn Russell, philosophy department chair and a conference organizer. "Civic engagement in a global society is premised on dialogue and information, as much as moral and social commitment. The movement from protest to politics and from theory to practice requires rethinking theoretical perspectives through engagement with activist projects. Together, many voices can forge common strategies for effective social change."

"The conference will provide students with a forum in which to present academic papers and also an opportunity to hear many interesting

Holly Marcolina Named the Phi Kappa Phi Scholar for November

Holly Marcolina of Middletown, N.Y., a senior adolescent education social studies and geography major, has been named the College's Phi Kappa Phi Scholar of the Month for November.

Phi Kappa Phi is a national honor society that recognizes academic excellence in the fields of higher education. Marcolina is being honored by the Cortland chapter for her academic achievements, leadership and volunteer involvement.

Marcolina, who plans to graduate in May, has maintained a 3.88 overall grade point average while participating in the College's Honors Program. She is a member of the Cortland chapter of the national freshman honor society Phi Eta Sigma and is listed in Who's Who Among America's College Students. She enrolled at SUNY Cortland on a prestigious, four-year SUNY Cortland Leadership Scholarship and has since been honored with the Alpha Delta Junior Award.

The Residential Services Office presented Marcolina with Above and Beyond Academic Peer Mentor of the Year Awards in both 2002 and 2003. She advised more than 180 student residents as an academic peer mentor in the Higgins and Shea Residence Halls and was a student presenter for the Resident Assistant Summer and Winter Training Sessions. She tutored her peers in history, geography and earth sciences from 2001-03 for the College's Educational Opportunity Program.

Marcolina served as a Cortland Ambassador through the Admissions Office, assisting with tours and panel discussions for prospective students.

A member of the student organization Brothers and Sisters in Christ (BASIC), Marcolina has served as its vice president, secretary, pastoral care team regional conference coordinator, altar worker, small group Bible study leader and West Coast Missions trip co-leader. This summer, she coordinated and led 11 BASIC students on a two-week trip to do ministry work in inner-city Vancouver, Canada, and to live for several days among the homeless in Portland, Oregon.

She has attended the Christian Assembly of God in Cortland and the First Baptist Church of Homer.

"I plan to pursue my master's degree at SUNY Cortland in either literacy education or adolescent social studies education," Marcolina said. "Ultimately, my goal is to be employed as a social studies teacher at the ninth or tenth grade level.

"It is my desire to not only prepare my students academically, but to be a teacher who assists them in becoming competent members of society who strive to conduct themselves with character and integrity. My goal as a professional is to help my students gain a broader perspective of the world, to look beyond their own lives and see the 'big picture.'"

UniPlanet Web Magazine Will Be Renamed at Nov. 6 Launch Party

SUNY Cortland's student-produced, Web-based international news magazine UniPlanet will officially change its name to NeoVox on Thursday, Nov. 6, announced Lorraine Berry, the publication's project director.

A launch party to celebrate the new name is set for 11:30 a.m. that day in Van Hoesen Hall, Room A-12. SUNY Cortland President Erik J. Bitterbaum, Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs Elizabeth Davis-Russell, and Dean of Arts and Sciences Mark Prus will attend. The event is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

At noon, Bitterbaum will officially open the new Web site by typing in its URL, www.neo-vox.org

Berry said the new name is intended to symbolize a new commitment to the magazine and to better reflect its international scope. NeoVox translates to 'new voice.'

The magazine's professional and student staff decided on the name change during the College's writers' group retreat on Sept. 13 at the Outdoor Education Center at Raquette Lake.

"The students wanted to dispel the notion of uniformity, as suggested by the name 'UniPlanet,'" said Berry, explaining the name change. "This was an international journal; therefore, how could it claim to represent a single viewpoint?"

"I was very pleased by the events at Raquette Lake," Berry said. "Real team-building took place among the students, who felt empowered by the opportunity to create something new that reflected them and that showed they were serious in their intent to bring a first-class Web magazine to this campus."

Along with the new name, the staff plans a complete redesign of the home page and interface as well as new content, articles and focus.

"This is essentially a brand-new magazine that is taking off from the foundation laid out by (former project director Professor) Devereaux Kennedy," said Berry, who took over in early September. "This new magazine is seeking to establish a 'magazine' feel, not a collection of student writings, but rather the kind of cultural commentary that one would see on an online magazine such as Salon. That's an ambitious goal, and it may take a while before it's fully realized. The new design is exciting and reflects a whole different sensibility than the one that came before it."

The group has decided on the sections they wanted to be part of this magazine: news and current events; culture; relationships; fiction, poetry and art; and a monthly in-depth exploration of a single theme.

The magazine is produced at SUNY Cortland during the academic year and at the University of the Sunshine Coast in Australia during summer break. The international staff of student correspondents file stories from news desks in the U.S., Australia, Indonesia, Peru, Venezuela, Romania and Slovakia. Originally named the Dragon Planet, the magazine was launched in 1999.

Wannsee Conference and Memorial Site Educator To Lecture Nov. 4 on History of Post-War Third Reich

Elke Gryglewski, an educator at the Wannsee Conference and Memorial Site in Berlin, Germany, will discuss "How East and West Germany Viewed the Third Reich after 1945" on Tuesday, Nov. 4.

Sponsored by the Center for International Education, the Jewish Studies Committee, and the History Department, the talk will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Brockway Hall Jacobus Lounge. The lecture is free and open to the public.

Gryglewski's talk will focus on the questions of how Germans have dealt with their Nazi past and how the German perpetrators were integrated into German society after World War II.

Gryglewski sits on the board of directors of the Action Reconciliation Services for Peace and works in the Wannsee mansion. Presently a museum and educational center, the mansion hosted the infamous January 1942 Wannsee Conference where top Nazi officials planned their "Final Solution," which resulted in the extermination of the Jews.

Born in Berlin, Gryglewski grew up in La Paz, Bolivia, where she came to know Klaus Barbie, who during the Third Reich had been the Gestapo chief in Lyon, France. Barbie was responsible for the deportation of thousands of French Jews, including hundreds of Jewish children.

Gryglewski's contact with Barbie, then advisor for Bolivia's military government, formed the roots of her intense interest in the history of National Socialism. After graduating high school in Germany, she spent time in Israel. Returning to Germany, she received a degree in political science in Munich. Her husband, a historian, researches the deportation of Jews from what was then Breslau, Germany.

Lori Megivern, a Cortland High School educator, helped organize Gryglewski's visit. For more information, contact Sanford Gutman, history, at ext. 2065.

'Folk Music Around The World' Concert Set for Nov. 4 in Dowd

The College Singers and the Women's Chamber Ensemble, under the direction of Stephen B. Wilson, performing arts, will present a concert of "Folk Music Around the World" at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 4, in the Dowd Fine Arts Theater.

England, Scotland, Ireland, Israel, South Africa, Mexico, Eastern Europe, and America will each be represented in this unique concert. The program will feature student soloists Rori Noguee, Alex Feulner, Kaleb Adams, Jared Tallman, Laura Vidal, Jackie Mitchell and Christen Owens. Sandra Scholz will play a flute obbligato for one selection. Freshman Eric Wolff will be heard in the spoken role as "The Husband."

Love, humor, patriotism and friendship will be celebrated by the varied works in this multi-cultural extravaganza.

The concert is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Wilson at ext. 4615.

Wind and Brass Ensemble Will Perform Nov. 11

SUNY Cortland students participating in wind ensemble and applied brass instruments this semester will present a concert of wind chamber music at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 11.

The concert, to be held in Dowd Fine Arts Theater, will feature Renaissance dance music, Klezmer's greatest hits, and dazzling variations on "Le Carnaval de Venise."

Featured student soloists will include Jennifer Andrews, recorder and clarinet; Clifford Piraino, guitar and recorder; Jon Campbell, recorder and percussion; Elizabeth Spencer, violin; Jennifer Fusik, euphonium; and William Wilczak, trumpet. Performing arts faculty members Ralph Dudgeon, Edward Moore and Stephen Wilson will assist the students.

The concert is free and open to the public. For more information, contact the Performing Arts Department at ext. 2811.

Responding to questions, Meyer said he does not think vandalism will become a problem with the costly devices.

"When a door on the stationary unit is opened activating our emergency response plan, a very loud, local alarm will go off," Meyer said. "The University Police will know where a unit has been pulled and will immediately respond with a cruiser. The campus Emergency Squad and a local ambulance will also come to the scene."

The Good Samaritan Law will protect a trained or untrained bystander who is unsuccessful in helping a victim, Meyer said.

Leadership Conference Planned for Nov. 5

Senior communication studies major and Student Government Association President Matthew Barone is among the planned presenters. SUNY Cortland faculty and staff speakers include: Assistant Director of Admissions Jose Feliciano, Psychology Professor Bill Hopkins, Head Football Coach Dan MacNeill, Residence Hall Director Chris Maxwell, Assistant Athletic Director Thomas Spanbauer and Assistant Professor of Literacy Pamela Summers. Dave Rossetti, Marathon High School principal, will also speak.

Each school will have an opportunity to present a memorable school event in a poster session. The schools that participate are also encouraged to bring a copy of their yearbook for others to see.

For more information, call the Center for Educational Exchange at ext. 4704.

News Briefs

'Child's Play' Exhibit to Open Nov. 6

The Art and Art History Department will open the Dowd Fine Arts Gallery's 2003-04 exhibition schedule with "Child's Play: Billie Grace Lynn and Marion Wilson," on Thursday, Nov. 6.

An artist talk featuring Lynn will be held at 4 p.m. and an opening reception take place from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Wilson's artist talk is planned for 6 p.m. on Dec. 4.

Exhibits and receptions are free and open to the public and are held in the Dowd Fine Arts Gallery.

Exhibitions are made possible by the Mandatory Activity Fee. Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 11 a.m.-4 p.m. The gallery is closed on Sunday, Monday and major holidays.

For more information, contact Gallery Director Barbara Racker at ext. 4216 or by e-mail at rackerb.

Timely Return Requested of Signed Winter Session Contracts

Winter Session contracts will be distributed to faculty by campus mail on Nov. 10. One signed copy of the contract should be returned within 10 days of the contract date to Mary Cervoni, Summer and Winter Session Office, Brockway Hall, Room 122.

Since Winter Session occurs during the contract year, departments will also be receiving a memo with instructions as to what paperwork is necessary for payroll.

Timely return of the contract assists the office with preparation of the Winter Session payroll so individuals may be paid on time. Those with questions about their contract, or those not receiving a contract but expecting one, should contact Cervoni at ext. 4207.

Concerto Program Nov. 18 Will Feature English Composer/Pianist

English composer and pianist Simon Proctor will be featured in an all concerto program with the Cortland College Community Orchestra at 8 p.m. on Nov. 18. The concert will be held in the Dowd Fine Arts Theatre and is free and open to the public. A reception will follow in the Dowd Fine Arts Gallery.

The program will celebrate Ruth Papalia's 42 years of service to the orchestra. She will retire from her harp position with the ensemble. The reception following the concert is in honor of her long service and lasting contribution to the musical life of the college and community.

The program will also include Mechthild Nagel, philosophy, as soloist with Papalia in Mozart's famous Concerto for Flute and Harp. David Neal, performing arts, is guest conductor for the Keyed Bugle Concerto written for Ralph Dudgeon, performing arts, by Simon Proctor in 1991. Dudgeon is the keyed bugle soloist.

For more information, contact Dudgeon at ext. 5721.

Recreation Conference Set for Nov. 6-7

by Anderson Young, recreation and leisure studies. The student organizers of the 53rd annual conference and the committees they chair include Dyana Baker of Hartford, N.Y., program design; Eric Clark of Hudson, N.Y., marketing; Barb Crosby of Penn Yan, N.Y., social services; Stacy Emley of Stockton, N.Y., special programs; Heather Howland of Candor, N.Y., conference coordinator; Rebecca Lee of Malta, N.Y., conference coordinator; Meghan Phillips of Suffern, N.Y., volunteer committee; and Kristin Shady of Owego, N.Y., public relations.

Jordan, the keynote speaker, received her degrees from Slippery Rock State College in Pennsylvania, Western Illinois University and Indiana University. She has served as a university outdoor programs director, a recreation programmer with criminal youth, a recreation leader for several small communities in the Midwest, an outdoor leader on extended outdoor trips and a camp director.

Currently in her seventh year at Oklahoma State, Jordan teaches at the undergraduate, masters' and doctoral levels. Previously, she taught at the University of Northern Iowa, Southwest Texas State University, Indiana University, and Iowa State University.

Jordan serves on boards of professional societies and associations at the state, national and international levels. She has visited nine universities as an accreditation reviewer in the recreation and leisure discipline. The author of Leadership in Leisure Services: Making a Difference, she also co-authored Programming in Leisure Services: A Servant Leadership Approach and Leisure and Life Satisfaction: A Foundational Approach.

U.S. Army Chorus will Perform At SUNY Cortland on Nov. 13

The U.S. Army Chorus will preserve the tradition of soldiers singing with a performance scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 13.

Presented by the Campus Artist and Lecture Series (CALS), the concert begins at 8 p.m. in the Old Main Brown Auditorium.

Reserved ticket prices, with general admission seating, are $2 for SUNY Cortland students, $4 for other students, $6 for faculty, staff and senior citizens and $8 for the general public. Tickets may be purchased in Corey Union, Room 406, or by calling ext. 2321.

Officially established in 1956, the musicians in the U.S. Army Chorus have earned an enviable reputation in the worlds of popular, classical, patriotic and religious music. The group has performed in every major city in the U.S., at many colleges and universities, at special patriotic and national observances and before television audiences.

Faculty-Staff Activities

Scott Anderson, geography, published "Dependent Environmentalism: A Case Study of Oreos and the Corcovado National Park in Costa Rica," in The California Geographer, Volume 43, 2003.

Ram Chaturvedi, physics, presented a paper, "Road to Peace," at the Regional Peace Conference held Oct. 18 at Ithaca College. The event was organized by Cornell University and Ithaca College.

James E. Bugh, geology emeritus, co-authored the paper, which dealt with the opinions of some 3,500 Cortland students who took a General Education course titled "Nuclear Weapons and Arms Control" starting in 1986.

Christopher P. Cirno, geology, presented a paper titled "Adirondack and Catskill Wetland Comparisons Based on Geology, Surficial Stratigraphy and Hydrology," at the 115th annual meeting of the Geological Society of America, in Seattle Wa., on Nov. 5. The paper is part of a session focusing on the modeling and comparisons called "Wetland Science: Intersection of Hydrogeology, Geomorphology, Ecology and Computer Modeling." The paper is based on work funded at SUNY Cortland from the National Science Foundation and the Environmental Protection Agency, and involving geology students Amanda Buboltz, Rachel Hutchinson and Noah Mantaro, and biological sciences student Lauren McChesney.

Ralph Dudgeon, performing arts, contributed several articles on instruments and performance practice in The Continuum Encyclopedia of Popular Music of the World, Vol. II: Performance and Production. The second volume was released this month by Continuum International of London and is part of a planned series of 16 volumes. Dudgeon's most recent book, Das Flügelhorn, will be published by PPMEDIEN GmbH, in German and English, and is scheduled for a December 2003 release. The work is a brief history of the instrument and features more than 100 color photos of instruments housed in the Instrumentenmuseum, Schloß Kremsegg, Upper Austria, as examples of change in the instrument's technology over the past 300 years.

Dudgeon's edition of Polonaise pour le Cor de Signale a Clef (Polonaise for the Keyed Bugle) by Joseph Küffner (1823) will be published this year by Spaeth/Schmid Blechbläsernoten. The edition is based on a manuscript score in the British Library. In addition to the original orchestral version, the edition includes a piano reduction and an arrangement of the work for symphonic wind ensemble. Dudgeon will perform the orchestral version of this edition with the Catskill Symphony on Nov. 22 in Oneonta, N.Y. Also on that program will be a Keyed Bugle Concerto written for Dudgeon by the English composer, Simon Proctor.

The fifth edition of Writing in the Disciplines: A Reader for Writers by Mary Lynch Kennedy, English, William J. Kennedy of Cornell University and Hadley M. Smith of Ithaca College, was released by Prentice Hall this fall. The combination rhetoric and anthology shows students how to read academic texts effectively and use them for source-based writing assignments in a variety of disciplines. Writing in the Disciplines has been used on more than 300 campuses. The companion Web site for the text, www.prenhall.com/kennedy, was written by Deb Richey of Owens Community College. A companion Web site for Mary Lynch Kennedy and Hadley M. Smith's Reading and Writing in the Academic Community, 2nd ed., Prentice Hall 2002, was recently produced by Thomas Jewell of Marymount College.

Virginia B. Levine, arts and sciences, is a recipient of the New York State Association of Foreign Language Teachers' (NYSAFLT) Anthony S. Papalia award for best article in foreign language teacher education. She was recognized for her article, "Teacher Education Changes in New York State: 1998-Present," at the NYSAFLT annual meeting held Oct. 11-13 in Rochester, N.Y.

Stephanie Urso Spina, foundations and social advocacy, was the guest speaker at the Guilderland Public Library on Oct. 25. Spina, the editor and one of the authors of Smoke and Mirrors: The Hidden Context of Violence in Schools and Society, (2000), presented "The Legacy of the Trenchcoat: Lessons from Columbine," as part of the Upper Hudson Library System's lecture series "Who Hates and What to Do About It?" The discussion series, part of New York State's observation of Humanities Month, was supported by a grant from the New York Council for the Humanities.

Robert Spitzer, political science, is one of five signatories on an amicus curiae (friend of the court) brief filed in opposition to a motion to rehear en banc before the full Circuit a U.S. Court of Appeals case for the Ninth Circuit, based in California. In the case, "Nurdyke v. King," a three-judge panel ruled that the Second Amendment right to bear arms pertains only to citizen service in a government militia. "En banc" review is a request to have the entire Ninth Circuit rehear the case. The other four signatories were Carl Bogus, Roger Williams Law School; Saul Cornell, history, Ohio State; Mariano Cuellar and Robert Weisberg, both from Stanford University Law School.

Michael Togli, psychology, as a psychology councilor in the Council on Undergraduate Research (CUR), attended CUR's biennial national business meeting this summer at Ursinus College near Philadelphia. While there, he was selected to serve on the nominating committee representing the psychology division and co-submitted a panel discussion abstract for the 2004 national conference to be held at the University of Wisconsin-LaCrosse next June. The panel is titled "Commuting, Jobs, Culture, and Undergraduate Research Participation. The topic deals with faculty who wish to engage undergraduates at urban, primarily nonresidential public colleges in research and the challenges they face; Students' time, which is often already committed to commuting, work and family responsibilities; and student expectations of the college experience, which does not initially include research. The roundtable discussion will address these and other challenges and will generate and evaluate potential solutions. Togli's co-presenters are Debra Zellner, Montclair State University, Vincent Prohaska, Lehman College of the City University of New York, and Nancy Oley, Medgar Evers College of the City University of New York.
