Mary K. Murphy Appointed Associate VP for Finance

SUNY Cortland has hired Mary K. Murphy of Liverpool, N.Y., as associate vice president for finance, effective Aug. 16.

She replaces William E. Shaut, who became vice president for finance and management in March.

Murphy will have primary responsibility for the areas of finance, student accounts, purchasing, payroll, internal control and Research Foundation fiscal administration.

Murphy has served as director of financial analysis at Syracuse University since 1996, overseeing and managing financial analysis activities, plant accounting and property management departments.

While there, Murphy implemented a palm-pilot major equipment inventory scanning program and developed a model to compute liability for post-employment medical benefits. She also developed analytical models for determining the impact of changing university policies on capitalization threshold and the useful lives of assets, resulting in a capitalization threshold increase from $500 to $5,000.

Murphy served as a trainer for the university's total quality management program in 1995 and has continued to act as the comptroller's office representative and consultant in matters promoting quality principals and concepts.

She joined Syracuse University in 1993 as a financial analyst. Previously, she was accounting manager at L'Airco Ltd., a former manufacturer of computer room air conditioners in Syracuse, N.Y., from 1991-92. She developed an accounting system, policies and procedures for the company's start-up, and assisted in the coordination of the shut-down and sell-off, preparing final financial statements and tax returns.

From 1984-1990, she was accounting manager with Alcatel-Transcom Corporation in Portsmouth, R.I. Murphy managed accounting operations for this telecommunications assembly plant until operations were consolidated with the parent organization in North Carolina. She coordinated and prepared the financial reports relating to the liquidation of assets and inventories as well as the transfer of assets to the North Carolina plant.

A native of Geneva, N.Y., and a graduate of Cicero (N.Y.) High School, Murphy completed the majority of her undergraduate work at the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth and earned a Bachelor of Science in Accounting with honors from SUNY Empire State College in 2000. She is currently pursuing a Masters of Business Administration in Accounting at Syracuse University.

Murphy is a member of the Northeast Conference on College Cost Accountants, the National Council of University Research Administrators, the Council on Government Relations and the Eastern Association of College and University Business Officers.

She is married to Matthew Murphy, a service technician for J.W. Stevens and a cooking instructor at Board of Cooperative Educational Services (BOCES). They have two sons, Luke, a sophomore at the Rochester Institute of Technology, and Zachary, a sophomore at Liverpool High School.

Rosenberg to Direct Field Placement

Rita Rosenberg of Ithaca, N.Y., recently was named director of the Field Placement Office at SUNY Cortland.

The interim director of the Field Placement Office since January 2003, she was promoted to the position on May 29. She reports to Edward P. Caffarella, dean of the School of Education.

"Rita brings to the position of field placement director a wealth of experience as a P-12 teacher and college faculty member," Caffarella said. "This experience enables her to serve as a bridge between the higher education and P-12 communities as we place our students in the schools, organizations and businesses of New York State."

"Throughout this past year as the interim director, I have grown to fully understand the challenges of this position," Rosenberg said. "I believe the office has the potential to be a leader in the area of field experiences and teacher certification and a model for other SUNY teacher preparation programs."

Rosenberg oversees the department that places the College's students in pre-kindergarten through high school classrooms for field experience and student teaching. She shares information with the school districts, canvasses them for placement opportunities and provides support to field coordinators and supervisors. She establishes partnerships with schools, provides support to field coordinators and supervisors, and ensures compliance with the mandates of New York State, the State University of New York and the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE).

Residence Hall Groundbreaking Set for July 13

SUNY Cortland will formally break ground on its first new residence hall in 30 years during a ceremony on Tuesday, July 13.

The $11 million facility will be located south of Neubig Hall on the site of the current Bishop Hall and Shea Hall annexes. The groundbreaking ceremony begins at 9:30 a.m. and is open to the public. An invitation-only reception will follow at 10 a.m. in the Neubig Hall cafeteria.

President Erik J. Bitterbaum will preside over the formal program which will include local elected officials, representatives from the architectural and construction firms working on the new building, and officials from both the SUNY Construction Fund and the College.

The four-storied residence hall will feature a colored glass tower that will face Corey Union and 195 beds in its junior style suites with private baths. Recent renovations to existing SUNY Cortland residence halls have resulted in a decreased capacity on campus. These refurbished facilities feature larger double rooms and more single rooms, necessitating the new residence hall to meet student on-campus living needs.

Construction will commence with the demolition of both annexes. Students will occupy the new facility at the start of the Fall 2005 semester.

For more information on the groundbreaking, contact Christine Wallace, special events coordinator, Miller Building, Room 404-1, at ext. 5453.

Annual Summer Institute in Character Education Attracted Nearly 300 Educators to Campus

Eight national authorities on character education, addressing topics ranging from creating a caring classroom to inspiring the quest for academic excellence, highlighted SUNY Cortland's tenth annual Summer Institute in Character Education June 28-July 1.

This year's Institute, titled "Improving Student Learning and Behavior Through Character Development," had nearly 300 educators from the U.S. and Mexico, Singapore, Lebanon, Japan, Australia and Belize. For the first time, a graduate credit option was available for the institute, with an additional day of sessions held on Friday, July 2.

Hosted by the Center for the 4th and 5th Rs (Respect and Responsibility) at SUNY Cortland, the week's programs provided sessions on the 12 components of the center's comprehensive approach to character education.

Speakers for this year's programs included Hal Urban, award-winning teacher and author of Life's Greatest Lessons and Positive Words, Powerful Results; Thomas Lickona, center director, and author of Educating for Character and Character Matters; and Matthew Davidson, research director for the center and co-author with Tom Lickona of Character Quotations.
