

College Council to Honor Linda Dickerson Hartsock With 2005 College-Community Appreciation Award

The SUNY Cortland College Council will present its 2005 College-Community Appreciation Award to Linda Dickerson Hartsock, the executive director of the Cortland County Business Development Corporation and the Cortland County Industrial Development Agency (BDC-IDA), during an invitation-only banquet on Friday evening, Oct. 14, in the Corey Union Function Room.

Hartsock becomes the 23rd recipient of the annual award established in 1985 to formally recognize and thank local residents who have significantly assisted SUNY Cortland. Since her arrival in 2000, Cortland County has experienced $195 million in new private sector investments, and the BDC-IDA has secured more than $19 million in federal and state grants for projects.

She has been an unwavering advocate for SUNY Cortland, the county's largest employer, and continuously promotes the advantages of working and living in a college town anchored by SUNY Cortland.

From her first day, she established a positive relationship with the College and ensured that SUNY Cortland would be an inaugural member of the Cortland Business Network, an organization of CEOs of major local businesses. She continues to weave SUNY Cortland and its many strengths into her appeals to attract businesses. She promotes the College's academic programs, facilities and its economic engine in her award-winning publications that sell Cortland County to New York State and the world. She regularly provides SUNY Cortland student interns the opportunity to work in her office.

Under Hartsock's leadership, the Cortland County BDC-IDA has garnered several national and state honors for its efforts.

Site Selection Magazine ranked Cortland as one of "America's Top Small Towns" for three straight years in its annual Governor's Cup competition. The BDC was one of three national finalists for the 2003 Excellence in Rural Development Award from the U.S. Economic Development Administration.

Cortland County was one of inaugural recipients of the Governor's Quality Communities Award for Excellence. The Cortland County BDC-IDA was named Empire State Development Small Business Advisory Board's 2002

Nonprofit Small Business Organization of the Year and the 2003 U.S. Small Business Administration's Financial Services Advocate Award winner for the 34-county Upstate New York region. The Cortland County BDC-IDA won top honors in 2002 and 2004 from the New York State Economic Development Council.

In 2005, Hartsock's leadership in sustainable development earned her one of the nation's oldest environmental awards, the Feinstone Award, presented by the SUNY College of Environmental Science and Forestry.

SUNY Cortland Begins 2005-06 State Employees Federated Appeal

SUNY Cortland kicked off its 2005-06 State Employees Federated Appeal (SEFA) campaign on Friday, Oct. 7, with a noon luncheon for volunteers in Corey Union. The campaign, which relies on state employee volunteers to canvas co-workers for donations, will continue until Friday, Oct. 28.

The only authorized fund-raising campaign among state workers, SEFA is directed by United Way of Cortland County and shares fund-raising efforts for a group of agencies united under a common umbrella.

This year's theme is "Join the SEFA Team: The New York Givers," according to Cortland campus SEFA Campaign Chair Sharon Todd, recreation and leisure studies.

"This year's campaign goal is to increase our campus' participation, both in terms of dollars raised and numbers of people giving," Todd said. "Last year, our campaign raised more than $41,327. If each employee gave just $1 a week, we could raise more than $60,000. Think of what a difference we could make in our own local community with that amount. Please consider increasing your pledge or pledging for the first time. Be a New York Giver."

For the 2005-06 campaign, the College will offer incentives for employees who donate to the SEFA campaign. At the end of the campaign, a drawing for four prizes will take place. First prize is a guaranteed parking space on campus in the parking lot closest to the winner's building. To enter, an employee must pledge at least $104 for the 2005-06 campaign.

Three Auxiliary Services Corporation (ASC) gift cards for $25 each will be given as second prize. To enter, an employee must pledge at least $25 for the 2005-06 campaign.

As an additional incentive, the United Way for Cortland County is holding a Dollar Challenge. To become eligible to win a 2005 Dodge Neon, donors need to

SUNY Cortland to Hold Fall Open House Oct. 10

Nearly 600 prospective college students are expected to spend a day visiting academic departments, touring the campus and talking to faculty and students during the SUNY Cortland Fall Open House on Monday, Oct. 10.

The College will show off its campus to interested individuals on a regular day of classes, said Admissions Director Mark Yacavone. Faculty, staff and students from academic departments and student service offices will be available to meet with visitors throughout the program. Additionally, guests may tour the campus and eat in the dining facilities.

The visitors have made prior reservations with the Admissions Office to be on campus that day, Yacavone noted. The program will formally begin at 10:15 a.m. in the Park Center.

Academic department faculty and student services staff will be set up in Park Center Corey Gymnasium from 10:15 a.m.-12:15 p.m. Guided tours of the campus and residence halls will run from 11:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. Guided tour participants should meet in the Corey Union Function Room.

Parking for the Open House visitors will be provided at Studio West and the Route 281 parking lot, which features a bus shuttle service to Park Center.

A second Fall Open House for those who are unable to attend the first one is scheduled for Veteran's Day, Nov. 11.

The Bulletin is published by the Institutional Advancement Office at State University of New York College at Cortland and distributed to faculty, staff and students. The Bulletin contains official College announcements, news reports and notices of campus events.

The Bulletin may be viewed online at www.cortland.edu/images/Bulletin.pdf.

Information for The Bulletin should be sent to Wendy Brooks, editor, Publications and Electronic Media Office, Studio West, Room B-18, P.O. Box 2000, Cortland, NY 13045.

The Bulletin will next be published Monday, Oct. 24. The deadline for copy for that issue is 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 18. All articles must be typewritten. Articles of more than 50 words should be submitted in Microsoft Word format by e-mail to bulletin@cortland.edu.

Change Theory Researcher Will Speak Nov. 8 at Biennial Cheney Educational Issues Conference

Gene Hall, co-author of Implementing Change: Patterns, Principles, and Potholes and an internationally recognized researcher and leader in change theory, will give keynote addresses on Tuesday morning, Nov. 8, at the fourth biennial Francis J. Cheney Educational Issues Conference.

Titled "Change is a Journey," the conference takes place from 8:45 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in Corey Union. Geared to higher education faculty and staff, their community partners, public officials, and representatives from community services and faith communities, the conference was organized by the Educational Leadership Department, chaired by Associate Professor Mary Kinsella.

"The day will offer tips, tricks and traps along the road to change and attempt to impart an understanding of change, an appreciation of facilitator styles and a learning opportunity about what happens to people and organizations implementing change," Kinsella said.

The conference registration deadline is Thursday, Oct. 27. The registration fee, which includes refreshments, buffet lunch and materials, is $30 for the public, $22 for certificate of advanced studies (CAS) student interns, and $12 for SUNY Cortland faculty and staff. To register or for more information, contact the Center for Educational Exchange at ext. 4704 or e-mail cee@cortland.edu.

Hall will give two different keynote addresses, at 9:50 a.m. and at 11:05 a.m., both in the Corey Union Function Room. His topics, respectively, will be "Leaders and Leadership for Change: How Change Facilitator Styles Affect the Implementation of Educational Innovations" and "How Change Facilitator Styles Interact with Social Construction of Organization Culture."

A professor of educational leadership at University of Nevada in Las Vegas, Hall's research and scholarship have been centered on understanding the change process in organizational settings. He is the lead author of the Concerns Based Adoption Model, which examines the personal side of change processes and the role of the leaders' change facilitator styles. He and his international colleagues evaluate, assess and study change processes from this perspective.

Registration begins at 8:45 a.m. At 9:30 a.m., President Erik J. Bitterbaum will open the conference with conference sponsor Louise Conley of Princeton, N.J., the granddaughter of former Cortland Normal School Principal Francis J. Cheney, who led Cortland Normal, which became SUNY Cortland, from 1891 until his death in 1912. Edward Caffarella, dean of the School of Education, will also give opening remarks.

A selection of five concurrent breakout sessions will be offered from 1:30-2:15 p.m. and again from 2:25-3:10 p.m. The selections are as follows:

- "Innovation Configurations: Understanding What 'It' Is." Hall will explore the concept of "Innovation Configuration," which addresses both the idealized images of a change developer as well as the various operational forms of the change that can be observed in classrooms. The innovation will vary along a continuum from being very close to what the developer had in mind to a distant zone where what is being done is nearly unrecognizable.

- "Levels of Use (LoU)." School of Education Dean Edward Caffarella will discuss the eight classifications, or levels, of how people act or behave with a change identified and verified through research. The LoU framework makes it possible to understand and predict what is likely to occur with people in change. Facilitators who understand and apply the LoU concept and its measures are able to provide appropriate interventions that will be relevant and helpful to those involved in change.

- "Making Change: Concerns-Based Adoption Model." Jerry Rice, a former Educational Leadership Department faculty member at SUNY Cortland, will conduct a session focusing on a simulation activity using the concepts and principles of the Concerned Based Adoption Model research. The game challenges participants to make appropriate decisions to move a school district toward improved student learning. The two-part seminar encompasses the earlier and later sessions for those taking it to meet their requirements.

- "CAS Program Completion and NYS Certification." Mary Kinsella, Educational Leadership Department chair, will review program completion, New York State certification and the steps students will need to take to fulfill all requirements for SUNY Cortland and New York State by next Sept. 1.

- "Interviewing and Job Seeking Skills." Louis Larson, career services, will present a workshop on all items necessary for a successful job search including resumes, cover letters, credentials, certifications, interviewing skills and strategies to get a job search on the right track.

The conference will wrap up remarks from Hall and evaluations at 3:10 p.m.

The Cheney conference was made possible by a generous donation from Louise M. Conley. The event is sponsored by the School of Education, the Center for Educational Exchange, the Educational Leadership Department and the Central New York Education Consortium.

Communiversality Day Set for Oct. 15

SUNY Cortland will host its second annual Communiversality Day on Saturday, Oct. 15, when Cortland County non-profit organizations have been invited to promote their organizations during a trio of sporting events at the Stadium Complex.

The SUNY Cortland Athletics Department will be collecting "Toys for Tots" at the main entrance. Spectators are encouraged to bring a toy to the game. The toys collected will be distributed to local needy children during the holiday season.

Area non-profit groups have been invited to display their materials inside the stadium's main entrance and to interact with the students, parents and other spectators who will be attending three SUNY Cortland athletic events that day.

At the same time, the Cortland Youth Bureau football, soccer and cheerleading teams and the Homer Small Fry Football teams will be acknowledged on the stadium video scoreboard.

Some of the top NCAA Division III field hockey and football teams will be in action that afternoon. Admission will be free to all the sporting events.

On one stadium field, the nationally ranked Red Dragon field hockey team hosts New Paltz at noon followed by the Cortland men's soccer team taking on SUNY Potsdam at 3 p.m. On the other Stadium Complex field, the 4-1 Red Dragon football squad hosts nationally ranked Rowan University at 1 p.m.

"Too often the hard work of our local non-profit groups goes unnoticed," said SUNY Cortland President Erik J. Bitterbaum, who launched Communiversality Day as a way to recognize the contributions that non-profit organizations and, this year, the youth sports organizations are making in Cortland County.

"I realize that those who volunteer and work in the non-profit sector do so without seeking or desiring any fanfare," added Bitterbaum. "But I speak for the entire SUNY Cortland campus in saying we are grateful for all you do in our community. We are extremely proud of the unselfish individuals who make Cortland County a special place."

For more information on Communiversality Day, contact Darci Contri, special events coordinator, at ext. 5453.

Student Teachers to Attend Conference

Students majoring in education programs who have completed the first of two student teaching experiences will attend the Educators In Training (EIT) conference from 7:45 a.m.-3:15 p.m., on Friday, Oct. 21, in Corey Union.

Sponsored by the Center for Educational Exchange (CEE), this professional conference is free. SUNY faculty are encouraged to pre-register with the CEE by calling ext. 4214.

Cynthia Benton, childhood/early childhood education, will welcome the 90 students to the teaching profession.

Various hour-long workshops will be presented by College faculty, staff and local educators. Topics include "Job Search Strategies," "Strategies for Success in Your First Year of Teaching" and "Creating Teaching Materials."

All students will attend three presentations about job search strategies, adapted physical education, and practical classroom management techniques. Students will also meet with their student teaching supervisors in focus groups to discuss their past quarter of student teaching. Four optional information sessions about graduate programs at SUNY Cortland will be held at 3:30 p.m. The sessions will address literacy, teaching students with disabilities, childhood/early childhood, and English as a second language.

SUNY Cortland faculty, staff and students making presentations include: Louis Larson and John Shirley, career services; Bill Buxton and Michele Gonzalez, literacy; Elizabeth Klein, childhood/early childhood education; Tim Davis, physical education; Janet Duncan and Cynthia Moriarity, foundations and social advocacy; Jean LeLoup and Paulo Quaglio, international communications and culture; and Peter McGinnis, graduate studies. Several Leadership and Education in Adapted Physical Education (LEAPE) students will also participate.

Area educators who will present include: Cindy Christopher, Tully Central School District; Larry King and Tom Turck, Homer Central School District; Bonnie Calzolaio, Jill Christian-Lynch, Karen Culotti, Amy Galimi, Patti Galimi, Pat Rice, Victoria Shephardson and Anne Marie Voutsinas representing area New York State Teacher Centers.

First Nations Veteran to Speak Oct. 12 and 13

Tasiwoopa api, a retired Army Special Forces veteran of Comanche and Mohawk descent, will discuss "Indigenous Warriors as Role Models" on Wednesday, Oct. 12.

Supported by a Campus Artists and Lecture Series grant, his lecture at 7:30 p.m. in the Corey Union Fireplace Lounge is free and open to the public.

Tasiwoopa api will also facilitate a multicultural sensitivity workshop for faculty and staff from 3-5 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 13, in the Exhibition Lounge. The program is sponsored by the Offices of the President and the Vice President for Student Affairs.

Multiply decorated during his military career, Tasiwoopa api is currently serving as president of Educational Fundamentals, a not-for-profit curriculum development foundation. He also writes screenplays with his spouse and is a doctoral candidate in adult learning and technology at the University of Wyoming.

Tasiwoopa api previously visited SUNY Cortland in 2003 to facilitate a Scholars' Day panel for a Native American Literature class.

For more information, contact Linda Rosekrans, English, at ext. 2081.

Oct. 24 Forum Will Focus on Balanced Literacy

"Balanced Literacy" is the title of a Seven Valley Reading Council Fall 2005 literacy forum scheduled for Monday, Oct. 24.

Phyllis Litzenberger, a reading specialist at Randall School, will present the forum from 4-6 p.m. in the Park Center Hall of Fame Room. The event is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Registration is required by Thursday, Oct. 20, by contacting Erin Eckert at Smith School, 33

Wheeler Ave., Cortland, N.Y., 13045 or by calling 758-4150 or sending an e-mail to eckert@cortlandschools.org.

The forum is co-sponsored by the Center for Educational Exchange, the Seven Valley Reading Council, the Cortland-Homer-McGraw Teacher Center, Cincinnatus Teacher Center and the Dryden Teachers' Center.

Film Series Documents Modern Asian Life

Everyday life in China is being showcased on campus throughout the Fall 2005 semester with a China Documentary Film Series.

The films, which are free and open to the public, are shown with English subtitles at 4 p.m. on selected Wednesdays in Van Hoesen Hall, Room A-14.

Sponsored by the Auxiliary Services Corporation (ASC) and Asian and Middle Eastern Studies, the movies showcase the Real China Foundation (RCF)'s 2005 Reel China Documentary Festival.

After each film, Tiantian Zheng, sociology/anthropology and coordinator of Asian and Middle Eastern Studies, will gather feedback about the film from viewers on behalf of the RCF. The series organizer, she received an ASC grant to obtain the films on loan from the RCF.

On Oct. 19, the 2002 film "Houjie Township" will be shown. Directed by Zhou Hao, the 112-minute work documents a small town near Guangzhou named Houjie. Houjie was transformed from a rural village to an industrialized and commercialized town and the migrant workers from Taiwan and Hong Kong who built it face a precarious existence as the first possible victims of a post-Sept. 11 global economic slowdown.

The 2001 film "Dance With Farm Workers," directed by Wu Wenguang and filmed by Su Ming, will be shown Oct. 26. The 57-minute film is about an unconventional performance that involves actors, dancers and 30 Beijing farm workers from poor regions of the Sichuan Province. Both the rehearsal and the performance take place in a former textile factory that could soon be torn down as part of Beijing's rapid modernization.

The farm laborers, who came to the city after losing their hopes in their hometowns, are the supporting pillars of the modernization.

On Nov. 2, the series continues with "Town Migration," a 94-minute, 1999 film directed by Gou Xizhi. Datong is a 2000-year-old town that the municipal government intends to reconstruct. The locals on Herui Old Street are told to move and that their houses will be torn down. Most of them oppose the move, not having enough money to build a new house and cherishing their street's past. For local officials, migration and reconstruction can't be reversed. The film depicts the seesaw battle between the government and the town locals and provides a remarkable record of how common people strive for their own rights in an ancient town.

The 2002 film, "The Happy Life," will complete the film series on Nov. 16. Directed by Jiang Yue, the 90-minute documentary takes place at the Zhengzhou Train Station, China's largest rail hub. A massive migration population bustles and flows in the station and no order can be permanently maintained. This story captures scenes of the daily concerns and desires of two station workers, Fu Jiansheng and Mr. Liu Yongli. Since his wife's death, Fu Jiansheng lives in memories and hopes of the past. Meanwhile, Liu Yongli is neither an idealist nor a dreamer, and only waits and hopes to lead a modern life. The film helps its audience understand the characters' spiritual and material lives and their unrealistic confrontation with reality.

For more information, contact Zheng, the series organizer, at ext. 2478.

Storyteller to Present 'Moving Words' Workshop

Award-winning storyteller, performer and educator Regi Carpenter of Brooktondale, N.Y., will present a workshop titled "Moving Words" twice on Tuesday, Oct. 11, in the Children's Reading Area of Memorial Library.

Sponsored by the Childhood/Early Childhood Education Department with support from a Campus Artists Lectures Series Grant, the workshop is scheduled for 8:30-10 a.m. and 10:05-11:15 a.m.

The student participants will take a simple text and learn the art of storytelling through movement, language, writing and other story activities that encourage sequencing and imagery.

Carpenter will lead the discussion and practice on how to choose a good story for telling, how storytelling differs from story reading and how the storytelling process meets the New York State Teaching Standards for language and the arts.

Called "an empathic voice" by Booklist, Carpenter has been a professional teller and teacher since 1993, presenting programs and workshops at libraries, museums, schools, festivals and conferences across America and England. A recipient of numerous awards, she has won the Parents' Choice Gold Award, the Parent's Choice Media Award and the Leonard Bernstein Teaching Artist Fellowship Award.

"Regi Carpenter has a voice that dances," according to Library School Journal. "It can, at a moment's notice, be as light as a feather, frisk about playfully, or leap with sudden power. Best of all is the sheer joy she communicates in telling her tales."

Carpenter has been recognized for her ability to convey humor, joy and insight through storytelling. A teacher of both story and drama, she was awarded a Leonard Bernstein Fellowship for Artists in Education in 1994. A New York State-certified elementary school teacher, she weaves storytelling into the entire curriculum while fulfilling the new teaching standards.

For more information, contact Judith Schillo, childhood/early childhood education, at ext. 2454.

Children's Museum Series of Events Will Continue During Fall

Children's educational programs including a puppet theatre, origami paper art, cooking for health, and cooking with math highlight the Children's Museum season on selected Saturdays during fall 2005.

Presented by faculty and students in the Childhood/Early Childhood Education Department, the programs are open to the community. Located on the ground floor of the O'Heron Newman Hall at 8 Calvert St. in Cortland, the museum will be open from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. on Oct. 29, Nov. 5, Nov. 12 and Nov. 19. Admission is free but donations are gladly accepted.

On Oct. 29, Assistant Professor Kim Rombach will offer a "Puppet Theater." The children are invited to come and use, create and enjoy the puppets in the museum's puppet theater.

On Nov. 5, Assistant Professor Lin Lin and her students will present "Origami," an authentic origami lesson and opportunity for participants to learn how to fold and create these paper animals, flowers and more.

On Nov. 12, Assistant Professor Susan Stratton will present "Cooking with Kids for Healthy Results."

"Kids are never too young to learn to cook foods themselves," said Stratton, who will share her child-friendly recipes.

On Nov. 18, Assistant Professor Heather Bridge will lead "Math and Cooking" to help the children use their math skills in fun and interesting ways while preparing delicious foods.

The museum offers interactive, hands-on educational experiences in an environment where Cortland community parents, grandparents, caregivers, teachers, college students, youth and young children can be inspired to play and learn together.

To reach the museum entrance, follow the O'Heron Newman Hall driveway. Parking is not permitted in the driveway but is available up the hill in the Dowd Fine Arts Center on the corner of Prospect Terrace and Graham Ave.

For more information, call the series organizer, Susan Stratton, at ext. 2467.

give just $2 more per week than they did last year or pledge at least $104 as a first-time donor. Five additional weekly prizes will be awarded. Those qualified for these drawings include new donors giving $1 week, or repeat donors giving an additional $1 per week more than they did last year. Existing members of the Leadership Giving Program, who have made an annual donation of $500 or more, or new Leadership Givers automatically qualify for all prize drawings. To be eligible for the Dollar Challenge, SEFA donors must give all or part of their donations to United Way for Cortland County and/or member agencies.

SEFA campaigns are also being conducted at the State Department of Labor, the Department of Environmental Conservation, the Department of Transportation, Office of Court Administration and the State Police. Decisions are made locally on which agencies are included and how funds are distributed. The community-based SEFA committee is composed of representatives from state agencies and managers of human service agencies. Pledging takes place just once a year. Many employees donate through payroll deduction.

Participants can choose to have their gifts shared among different organizations within the county where they work, used in another county of their choice, or designated for individual local, state, independent or international organizations. Local examples of such agencies include the United Way for Cortland County, Madison-Cortland New York State ARC (formerly Alternatives Resources and Choices for Developmentally Disabled Persons), American Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Catholic Charities, Cortland Area Child Care Council, Cortland County Child Development Center, Family Counseling Services, Lime Hollow Center for Environment and Culture, Mental Health Association, Salvation Army, Franziska Racker Centers, United Service Organization, YMCA and YWCA.

Faculty-Staff Activities

Victoria Boynton, English, had her poem "Ancestor" accepted for publication in The Mid-America Poetry Review. Also, she has co-edited with Jo Malin The Encyclopedia of Women's Autobiography, 2 Volumes (Greenwood Press, 2005). Along with Kathryn Russell, philosophy, Boynton co-authored the essay "Feminism," for the encyclopedia.

Matthew Gronquist, chemistry, co-authored a research article in The Journal of the American Chemical Society. The paper, "Exploring Uncharted Terrain in Nature's Structure Space Using Capillary NMR Spectroscopy: 13 Steroids from 50 Fireflies," describes the first use of Capillary NMR Spectroscopy as a technique for the analysis of minute amounts of chemicals isolated from a natural source.

John Hartsock, communication studies, was recently named book review editor of the newly relaunched DoubleTake magazine. An arts and culture magazine, DoubleTake focuses on publishing original literary journalism. The magazine was founded in 1995 by the eminent Pulitzer Prize winning documentarian Robert Coles, professor of psychiatry and medial humanities at Harvard University and author of more than 60 books. The critically acclaimed publication was funded in part by Bruce Springsteen and was the recipient of a National Magazine Award in 1998. It has published articles by such authors as Susan Faludi, John McPhee, prison inmates and schoolchildren. Publication was suspended last year while the magazine made the shift from a commercial model of paid staff to an academic model composed of volunteers. Coles will remain as co-editor of the magazine. The next issue will be published in late November.

Ellen Hill, English, had her article, "Transforming the Concept of Cultural Diversity: Using Ethnic-Specific and Hyphenated-Ethnic Novels to Teach Universal Human Rights," accepted for publication in the Fall 2005 New York State English Council journal, The English Record.

Robert Spitzer, political science, is the author of entries, "Presidential Elections," "Third Parties" and "The Right to Life Party," for the recently published Encyclopedia of New York State. Edited by Peter Eisenstadt, the reference work is published Syracuse University Press in cooperation with the State Education Department.

Dorothy Troike, literacy, presented a keynote address titled "Current Trends in Young Adult Literature; Engaging Readers and Promoting Literacy" at a research conference on Young Adult Literature and Language Teaching on May 27 at Capital Normal University, Beijing, China. During her two-week visit to Capital Normal she also conferred with faculty and students, reviewed their young adult literature curriculum, and presented a lecture to the inservice teachers of the Fangshan District south of Beijing on Literacy Strategies Before, During and After Reading.

Arden Zipp, chemistry, chaired the 2005 International Baccalaureate (IB) Chemistry Grade Award that was held at the IB's Curriculum and Assessment Center in Cardiff, Wales, during June. In addition to Zipp, the Grade Award team included two individuals from Great Britain and one each from Bahrain, Italy, Portugal and Spain. The 2005 IB chemistry exams were taken by more than 12,000 candidates.

Advising Workshops Planned for Faculty

The Advisement and Transition Office will offer two workshops to interested faculty during October. Faculty are invited to bring their lunches to the free workshops.

The first workshop, titled "Advising 101 – General Academic Advising Information for Faculty," will be held from 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 12, in the Memorial Library conference room.

Attendees will have the opportunity to gain a better understanding of SUNY Cortland degree requirements, pick up advising tip sheets and interactive advising materials, and share techniques that other people in attendance use to work with students.

A second workshop titled "Advising 201 – Academic Advising for Transfer Students," will take place from 1-2 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 20, in Corey Union, Room 209.

This workshop will focus on national and local statistics about transfer students. Participants will share techniques and tools used to efficiently and effectively advise transfer students and gain a better understanding of the transfer admission and credit evaluation process.

To make a reservation, or for more information about the workshops, contact Meg Nowak at nowakm@cortland.edu.

Information Session to Feature Internal Grants

A new faculty information session titled "Internal Grant Opportunities" will be held from 5-6:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 26, in the Park Center Hall of Fame Room. It is sponsored by the College Research Committee, Faculty Development Center and the Office of Sponsored Programs.

Five internal funding programs will be highlighted: Faculty Research Program (FRP); Summer Research Fellowship Program (SRF); College Foundation Research Travel Grants Program (RTG); Teaching Innovation Grants, and the Faculty Incentive Grant Program (FGIP).

The session will include an overview of the programs, discussion of the criteria, networking possibilities with previous award recipients and members of the committees, and handouts of successful grant proposals.

A dinner buffet will be served. Those who plan to attend should call the Office of Sponsored Programs by Oct. 21 at ext. 2511 or e-mail Pam Schroeder at pams@em.cortland.edu.
