"Don't get frustrated when applying to jobs. You may get rejected multiple times but every time you get rejected it will make you stronger and more experienced at interviews."

"Take every internship you can handle. Work for free and work hard. I wouldn't say it's ONLY about who you know, but a reference goes a long way, so make sure you have several."

"Ask the question: Who am I? College gave you the foundation of forming a sense of identity. Take those experiences and constantly reflect. Ask yourself: How can I continue to grow and develop purpose with my life?"

"Get involved and step out of your comfort zone. Classes are great for getting the basics of what you want to do, but real-life experiences are what will prepare a college student for what comes next (and it looks better on a resume). Cortland offers clubs of various shapes and sizes that can be fun, and any extra involvement you do outside of class is worth it. Before you graduate, push to work as an intern somewhere. It's an invaluable experience, you'll meet contacts you can use for future reference and plenty of them even pay you."

“Do not be afraid to take the leap and move somewhere new, different, or not in your original life plan. Countless times people would bring up the lack of jobs in education or how their brother, cousin, etc... still did not have a job teaching in New York/Long Island. The truth is there are PLENTY of jobs in education out there, you just need to be willing to step out of your "bubble" and go do it. Did I expect to become a teacher in Florida, no way, but I am so thankful I bought myself a one way ticket and took the opportunity given to me. I'm not someone who is sitting, waiting, and doing next to nothing to try and become a teacher in NY/LI. I'm getting fantastic experience and loving every moment of it. About 95% of the people telling you, "You won't get a job", "Getting a job is too hard", are the same people who have no intention of leaving their "bubble" or adapting their "life plan". The job market is tough, but those jobs are out there if you are willing to look. Never feel like you are failing, keep your head up, and breathe. It always gets better.”
