APPEALS PROCESS

A student who wishes to appeal any decision of the Teacher Education Candidate Review Committee may do so within 10 school days of the delivery receipt date of the decision letter. Appeals are to be submitted to the dean of the student’s academic school, and will be reviewed by a committee comprised of the deans of the three academic schools and the vice president for student affairs. Some grounds for an appeal might include: unjustified decision, personal hardship, disproportionate consequence, or new information. Further information may be sought from the student’s dean.

DUE PROCESS RIGHTS OF TEACHER EDUCATION CANDIDATES

A student has the right to:

1) Be informed in writing of the steps involved with background checks and disposition reviews pertaining to education record.
2) Receive written notification of the outcome of a TECRC decision within 10 school days of the date of decision.
3) Respond to all information used in making decisions that negatively impacts upon the student academic major.
4) Appeal the outcome of a decision.
5) Know what information is kept in the student’s file, and the right to know where the student file is maintained and how long it is kept.

Approved by the Teacher Education Council (TEC) on 4/7/2005, revised July 2011
Teacher candidates have a special responsibility to be positive role models. The teacher certification process involves assessing “good moral character.” SUNY Cortland, therefore, has identified important dispositions for all teacher education candidates to emulate. The Teacher Education Candidate Review Committee reviews information relative to any patterns of alcohol, drug use, or violent behavior as part of reviewing character requirements for aspiring teachers. In addition, each department may set its own individual disposition requirements. The Teacher Education Candidate Review Committee reviews information relative to any patterns of alcohol/drug use, or violent behavior as part of reviewing character requirements for aspiring teachers.

Teacher candidates in all programs of study are expected to develop and reflect the dispositions that are delineated in professional, state, and institutional standards. Compulsory character dispositions include: honesty, integrity, caring and empathy for others, work ethic, diligence, personal and social responsibility, and accountability. Professional dispositions include the following essential traits: collegiality, dedication to profession, leadership, change agent, cooperation and collaboration, respect and value education, confidentiality, and professional conduct that includes demonstrating good moral character and ethical behavior. [Source: 2004-05 Student Teaching Handbook, Introduction and page 7.]

Charge & Authority of the Teacher Education Candidate Review Committee (TECRC)

The Teacher Education Council (TEC) has charged a standing committee (TECRC) with reviewing applications to the teacher education programs; developing rubrics for evaluation; continually assessing candidate qualifications at various check points, and notifying questionable applicants of the committee’s decisions.

What is the Process?

1) When students apply for admission into their teaching major, the application asks students if they have ever been convicted of a felony, misdemeanor, or violation, and if they have ever received a discharge other than honorable from the armed services, and if they have ever been found in violation of the Code of Student Conduct. It also asks about any incidents of academic dishonesty or if the student is a registered sex offender. Transfer students are asked if they have had a student conduct record, or have been suspended or dismissed from a prior institution. All applicants are also asked if they have previously had a teaching certificate denied. (NOTE: Applicants are required to sign a statement indicating that if they have any change in status relative to violations of this nature, they are obligated to inform their associate dean.)

2) The academic departments forward names of any students who mark “yes” for any of the above items to the Teacher Education Candidate Review Committee (TECRC) for further review.

3) The TECRC then proceeds with a student conduct background check, or other review such as a review of academic integrity, to verify the information that has been submitted.

4) The TECRC uses a rubric to review student conduct histories. (A copy of the rubric may be requested from the Associate Dean’s Office of the student’s School.) Most violations are reviewed on a case-by-case basis. If a student has a pattern of alcohol or drug use or a history of violent or harassing behavior and/or if the student is on disciplinary probation or has been found in violation of academic dishonesty and/or not considered to be a student in good standing, the committee may choose to conditionally accept or deny an application. A conditional acceptance typically restricts a student’s ability to enroll in coursework with a field component (such as student teaching) until the student is off disciplinary probation and/or may require the student to submit a reflection paper for review by the committee. Students are informed that further violations could jeopardize their continuance in any teacher education program.

5) If the TECRC decides on a conditional acceptance or denial, the chair of the committee sends a certified, return-receipt letter to the student with any other requirements (e.g., a reflection essay) to complete. The student is notified that he/she has a right to appeal the decision to his/her academic dean, and an appeals committee, comprised of the deans of the three academic schools and the vice president for student affairs, will be convened.

6) Another checkpoint for TECRC review occurs prior to student teaching. Each semester, the Field Experience and School Partnerships Office sends the names of all students planning to student teach the following semester to the Student Conduct Office. All records are checked, and a report is generated for review by the TECRC. The committee also reviews any academic dishonesty or subsequent violations which may have occurred after the initial background check. TECRC ascertains if each student is eligible to student teach based on the same rubric used during the initial application check. It is important to note that if a student was not truthful in self-reporting on the initial application OR if the student has subsequent violations, incidents of academic dishonesty, or student conduct violations from the time of application, their status is evaluated again, and there may be consequences. NOTE: The TECRC reserves the right to review disciplinary matters involving teacher education candidates that come to its attention at any time while the candidate is enrolled at SUNY Cortland.